Bio:

Dr Thomas William Nielsen is a Lecturer/Assistant Professor in Education at the University of Canberra, Australia, where he teaches behaviour management and educational philosophy. His Ph.D. was a hermeneutic phenomenological case study of imaginative teaching in Steiner schools, contextualised through an examination of the holistic tradition in education.

He has a particular interest in combining notions of holistic, spiritual and constructivist teaching, in order to cater for the whole person - hands, heart and mind. His first book Rudolf Steiner’s Pedagogy of Imagination: A Case Study of Holistic Education is being published by Peter Lang in 2004 List of publications related to imagination and education